Important Information About Independent Medical Exams

For workers

Independent medical examination (IME)

An IME is an exam scheduled by the insurer processing your claim. The insurer will choose the IME provider and pay for the exam. The insurer may require you to attend up to three IMEs. Some exams may be scheduled with more than one health care provider at more than one location, but only count as one of the three IMEs. This is called a panel exam. If your claim is closed and later reopened, the insurer may require you to attend up to three more IMEs.

Observer at the IME

You may have an unpaid observer attend the exam with you; IME provider approval is required for psychological exams. An observer may not participate in or interfere with the IME. To have an observer, you must complete and sign the "IME Observer Form" that is attached to this brochure. By signing this form, you are stating that you understand you may be asked sensitive questions during the IME in front of your observer. The IME provider does not have to allow the observer to be present if this form is not completed and given to the health care provider. You may use a device to record the IME only if the IME provider approves.

Expenses

The insurer will pay some expenses for you to attend the exam, such as car mileage, child care, lodging, and some meals. The insurer must send you a form with this brochure for you to request repayment of your expenses. You must complete the form and send it to the insurer. If you need payment in advance, you must ask for payment from the insurer as soon as possible. The insurer will make every effort to get the advance payment to you before the exam.

Invasive medical procedures

If the IME provider intends to perform an invasive procedure, the IME provider must explain the risks. An invasive procedure is one that breaks the skin or penetrates, pierces, or enters the body using a surgical or exploratory procedure (e.g., by a needle, tube, scope, or scalpel). You have the right to refuse an invasive procedure. Refusal will not affect your right to workers’ compensation benefits. The IME provider must give you the form 440-3227, "Invasive Medical Procedure Authorization." Complete the form, marking "Yes" or "No," and give it back to the IME provider. The IME provider will give you a copy and send the original to the insurer.

Attendance

You must attend the IME. If you cannot attend, immediately contact the insurer. If you do not attend and do not provide a good reason, the Workers’ Compensation Division (WCD) may allow the insurer to stop paying your benefits, which may include medical, time loss, and permanent disability. Also, unless you are receiving time-loss benefits, WCD may fine you $100 if you do not attend the exam. The insurer would take the $100 from your future benefits.

Location

If you object to the location of an IME, you may contact the insurer processing your claim to informally reach an agreement about the location. However, if you want WCD to formally review the location, you must ask WCD to do this within six business days from the postmarked date the appointment notice was mailed to you. Explain the reasons that you object. WCD will review your reasons and either help you and the insurer reach an agreement or issue a formal decision about the location.

Note: The insurer must choose an IME provider from the director's list of authorized IME providers. There may be a limited number of IME providers available to choose from in certain locations.

Items to bring to the IME
- Medical records you have been asked to bring, such as X-ray films.
- A list of all the medications you are taking.
- A list of all the health care providers you have seen about your workers' compensation claim.
- Picture identification.

At the IME
Each IME experience is unique. While you should be treated with respect and care, an IME may feel different from other exams. The difference between a typical exam by your health care provider and an IME is that the IME provider will not provide treatment or build a doctor/patient relationship. You will probably not see the same IME provider again and he or she needs to gather a lot of information from you in a short period of time. IME providers are trained to perform the exam according to the Oregon Administrative Rules and are required to follow set standards.

The IME provider needs your help to accurately answer questions posed by the insurance company. This can be intense, and some IME providers may ask the same question more than once or rephrase their original question in an attempt to fully answer the insurer's question. Please do your best to provide an accurate answer to the best of your knowledge. The IME provider may need to measure range of motion or observe your physical capabilities. Try and relax and give your best effort, but speak up if the exam hurts or if you are unable to do what the IME provider is asking. You have the right to tell the IME provider to stop a procedure if it is causing you too much pain or is beyond your physical capacity.

You may request a copy of the IME report from your claims examiner. If you notice inaccurate information you can write a letter to your claims examiner to address it, and the letter will become a part of the official claim file. If you are represented by an attorney, work with him or her to address the inaccuracies.

After the IME is finished
- The IME health care provider will send a copy of the report to the insurer.
- The insurer will send a copy of the report to your health care provider.
- You can request in writing a copy of the IME report from your insurer.
- If you have questions about the report, talk with your health care provider.
- Go online to www.wcdimesurvey.info to complete the WCD survey or if you have a complaint about the IME.

Contact information
If you have questions or need assistance, contact the Workers’ Compensation Division, 800-452-0288 (toll-free) or 503-947-7810. For general questions, call 503-947-7585 or email workcomp.questions@oregon.gov.

The Ombudsman for Injured Workers is the state office that serves as an independent advocate for injured workers by helping them understand their rights and responsibilities, investigating complaints, and acting to resolve those complaints. You can contact the Ombudsman's Office at 800-927-1271 (toll-free) or 503-378-3351. Visit its website, www.oregon.gov/DCBS/OIW, or email oiw.questions@oregon.gov.

Instructions for IME Observer Form
- If you want to have an observer present, fill out this form, sign it, make a copy for your records, and give it to the IME provider at the time of the exam.
- If you attend a panel exam, you need to make a copy of this form for each IME provider on the panel.
